ABSTRACT

A portable workstation ergonomically designed to ease muscle tension for portable computer users is disclosed. The workstation comprises foldably coupled surfaces which provide an easily folding and portable workstation with a raised work surface, which raises, for example, the computer screen and keyboard of a laptop to a more comfortable height for the user. The workstation also includes a raised and tilted surface with a lip to secure items in place on the work surface.